He said that the subcommittee reviewed parking impact fees in other communities and received input from City business owners as well as an assessment of the average cost to construct a covered parking space and the potential impacts of various parking fee revisions on large and small developments in the Central Business District. The subcommittee further recommended that the fee be reviewed and updated no less than every five years. He reported in recent months a number of business owners have raised concerns regarding the effects of the fee on the City’s small businesses.
