Dear Ann:

I was a bit surprised when you mentioned at the close of the meeting last night that you hadn't received the materials until late, for according to the Internet "time stamp" on my computer I transmitted mine at 11:58 a.m., just before the noon deadline, and I e-mailed it to everyone simultaneously.

Did I send them to you at an incorrect e-mail address? Was there some disruption in transmission? Was there some malfunction in the system? I am concerned. What time did you receive mine?

Needless to say, if there is a technical problem I would like to cure it. Please let me know.

Thank you.
